"As a matter of fact, it is because of the insolubility in water that they have found extensive uses in the arts. For example, they are used to water-proof fabrics and all sorts of porous material. They are used in the flatting of paints and varnishes. A very important characteristic of metallic soaps is their power to jell mineral oil. On this property depends their extensive use in the manufacture of all types of high grade lubricants."

Oil Products Plant Is Brought to Georgia

We will need at the start about 0.000 barrels a month. We came to Atlanta to arrange for the production of these barrels from a dependable firm. We found the firm that will supply our barrels will have to enlarge its plant and increase its force in order to handle our contract."

Barton and Woods were in conference most of yesterday with William H. Barnwell, industrial agent of the Georgia Power Company, contacting various Atlanta firms with whom their company will do business and ironing out the details of the rush job that will be done to open the new plant as soon as possible.

"I want to say that Mr. Barnwell deserves all the credit for having brought us to Georgia," said Barton. "We have been examining possible sites in the south for several months but he dug up the location at Cedar."

Most important in determining the selection of Cedartown was a natural spring which provides unlimited water supply for the plant.

"We took many gallons of this Cedartown water to our New Jersey plant and subjected it to every sort of test." said Barton. "It stood the tests 100 per cent. That was what we were looking for principally and Mr. Barnwell found it for us. We use a tremendous amount of water and it must be cool, clear, fresh water.

"We manufacture over 1,900 different products," said Barton yesterday. "Our materials are used in the manufacture not only of textile fabrics, but in leather, paint, paper, glue, rubber, cosmetics and hundreds of other materials.

Sulphonation Process.

Norris statement indicated to many degislators that he was siding in principle with David Lilienthal, another member of the TVA board, in a conflict expected to be settled finally at the White House. Lilienthal has been represented as desiring an aggressive policy toward the utilities.

Officials at the White House in-sisted that appointment of the President's new power policy committee had no relation with the controversy over proposals to "pool" public and private power in the Tennessee valley. In a letter to Secretary Ickes, chairman of the committee, President Roosevelt said, however, that the policy established would "apply to existing projects, such as Boulder dam and portions of the TVA, and to all new power developments as they are completed during the next few years."

Uniform Policy.

The committee was asked to frame a uniform policy covering power generation, transmission and distribution.

Washington reports indicate the President's message pointed to such a development. It is putting it mildly to say that the country at large will welcome changes that will at least trim down the enormous machine to be erected in Washington if the law remains unaltered.

In Georgia, as elsewhere, the oldage feature of the law has a wide public support. That is readily explained. Two naval officers noticed he always seemed to be near enough to overhear their purely non-naval conversation. They decided to offer him something worth listening to. One officer asked the other how the Frigidaires were working out in those new gun turrets. His companion caught the suggestion deftly and replied very loudly that the new system would probably double the metal throwing capacity of the guns. Hereafter four guns would be put in a single turret, etc., etc. The suspect immediately departed.

increase of 32 per cent over the current fiscal year's figures, hitherto the high water mark.

Tax Reform Program.

With the budget is linked a tax "reform" program which provides for the first important increases in direct taxation since 1926. Income taxes are to be raised, examption limits lowto be raised, exemption limits low-ered, prices of government monopolies' goods raised. For the first time the people are asked to dig down in their pockets to finance the militarist-imperialist programs.

They are asked to balance military glory and imperial prestige directly against higher prices of rice, sakeh (native wine) and cigarets.

Heretofore all budgets since that of 1932-33, with large army and navy expenditures, have been balanced by orrowing. The budget is to be laid before the imperial parliament, or diet, when it reconvenes after the new year holi-days, January 21. Diet approval is Desire of the house to eliminate the clause in the 1936 and 1937 appropriations bills, and insistence of the sen-ate that it be included, brought about the impasse which resulted in passage of no bill in 1935.

Enough Funds on Hand.

Chairman Key declared to commit-teenen that practically enough money is on hand now to meet requirements of the six-month bill, and held that of the six-month bill, and held that special precautions by tax collectors in getting in delinquent payments would be sure to yield enough. However, he recommended inclusion of the "grandfather clause" as a precaution, especially in view of the fact that the measure was a temporary one and will be replaced in July by a two-year appropriation bill.

Drenching downpours wrought new havoc along glutted streams in the muddy Ohio valley yesterday.

Rains ranging from one to more than two inches sent the mighty Ohio out of its banks in some sectors and raised fear of serious flood damage along its 980-mile course from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill.

The broad river and its tributaries

The broad river and its tributaries swelled steadily. Hundreds of low-landers joined several thousand others who had fled to the hills. Red Cross units established quarters to care for refugees in the inundated areas. Industrial plants which lost $1,000,000 worth of machinery in floods last March moved equipment.

Battle at Levees.

An army of workmen strengthened levees. Turbid waters swashed through the streets of several communities and coursed over thousands of acres of land. Several idle strip mines were engulfed in Indiana. Many schools were closed. A number of merchants in the danger zones boarded up store fronts and carried stock to upper floors. At least four deaths were attributed to the inundations.

Pittsburgh Conditions.

Meteorologists warned riverside householders at Pittsburgh that streams would probably go beyond flood levels today. A crest of 28 or 29 feet was predicted at the confluence of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio there. Flood stage is 25.

At Henderson, Ky., a crest of 47.5 feet—nine and a half over flood stage—was expected Friday. Virtually all of Union township, Indiana, was under water. Boats provided the only transportation for hundreds of bottom land folk.

The body of Indiana's second flood victim was recovered from the White river at Indianapolis. A number of families in Evansville prepared to leave their dwellings as the weather bureau advised the overburdened Ohio river would reach the highest stage since 1933. WPA laborers rushed to Hazelton to build a levee.

Citizens of Johnstown, Pa., the "flood city," anxiously eyed the Conemaugh river. It was expected to edge up to 10 or 11 feet today—four under the flood stage but high enough to flood basements.

(P)—Six Marinette, Wis., commercial fishermen, stranded on an ice floe in Green bay, off Cedar river, reached shore safely late today.

They were the last of 25 fishermen to bridge a widening gap of water, safely after being marooned on an ice field which for a distance of 50 miles moved out along the Wisconsin and Michigan shore.

The men found a narrow spot in warrants over a period of about four years, through inauguration of a program of rigid economy but at the same time maintaining necessary public services.

Only four callers disturbed the quiet of the White House study today where the President was at work. One, Senator Sherman Minton, Democrat, Indiana, an ardent New Dealer and outspoken critic of the supreme court, disclosed that Mr. Roosevelt soon would call a conference on legislation aimed at the country's highest tribunal.
While thousands of pre-inaugural visitors thronged the rain-soaked city streets, jammed congressional corridors and went sightseeing, officialdom speculated on the content of the President on Wednesday will redefine the nation is foreign policy in the light of troubled conditions abroad and with permanent neutrality legislation certain to come before this congress. In its first inaugural, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Internationalists hope the President on Wednesday will redefine the nation is foreign policy in the light of two will redefine the nation in come before this congress. In its first inaugural, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"In the field of world policy I would dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor. . ."

He has not even given his congressional leaders the outline of his legislative program. He has revealed his views on government reorganization to congress and, in his message on the state of the union, appealed to industry to co-operate in reducing the federal expenditures for relief by employing more unskilled workers from reing more unskilled workers from re-lief rolls. Whether the President will go farther in "spanking" the supreme court after taking the oath of office again on Wednesday than he did in his message on the state of the union when he demanded that the tribunal interpret the fundamental law more liberally, interested many here tonight. Mr. Roosevelt held in that message that there was no "vital need" for a constitutional amendment to achieve the social objectives pledged by his administration.

"There are many ways in which it can be helped," said the President, "but it can never be helped merely by talking about it... We must act and act quickly."

Look for Hints.

Business and industry will look to the second inaugural address for hints of any new reforms. Under the first New Deal there has come regulation of stock exchanges to curb what the chief executive termed "speculation with other people's money a "death sentence" for utility holding companies; a stiff tax on undistributed corporate surpluses; a broad plan to fix maximum hours, minimum wages and maximum hours, minimum wages and eliminate cut-throat competition under the NRA which was scrapped by the supreme corrit; the Social Security Act which embraces unemployment Hartwell.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 .- (A)-The first definite indication that President Roosevelt will act soon to bring order out of chaos of conflicting proposals concerning the supreme ing proposals concerning the supreme court developed today in the form of a surprise announcement by Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana.

After a visit to the President, Minton declared that Mr. Roosevelt will summon a conference soon on the question of possible legislation dealing with the high tribunal.

The news aroused interest in congress, which has been showered with a variety of suggestions for curbing the court, obtaining decisions more favorable to administration objectives, or broadening congressional powers over industry and agriculture.

Just who will attend the presidential conference was not announced. Some legislators assumed, however, that congressional leaders would be among those present.

Not until dawn—six hours after the crime—were the 700 guests allowed to leave the scene. They were forced to resume their places at tables in the glass ballroom on the sixth floor of the opera house, and then could leave only by twos and threes as detectives finished questioning them.

The dinner was being held in honor of Barney Shapiro, executive director of the Affiliated Ladies' Apparel Carriers' Association and president of the Garment Truckmen's Benevolent Association of New Jersey.

A noisy crowd in one corner of the huge room, Cicero among them, refused to be silenced as the toastmaster pounded for order. Men and women screamed in panicky efforts to leave that section when blows were struck and a bottle cracked over someone's head.

But the orchestra leader started music and a number of couples moved to the floor to dance while order was being restored by special nolice and watters. Unknown to most of those present, Cicero, who had slumped under his table, was carried out and down a fire escape to the theater loby on the lower floor.

BOMBER-PASTOR SHOULD BE GOOD

Lardner Senses Thrilling Fight for Friday Night Week.

By John Lardner.

(Copyright, 1937, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A couple of million fight folks turned out to clutched the covers and whispered: eat beefsteak in memory of the late Joe Humphreys. Among them were two young men who dislike each other very much in a professional way but get along fine socially, that being a normal state of affairs in the cauliflower business.

Joe Louis and Rob Pastor are scheduled to tear each other limb from limb-or, as Mr. James J. Johnston puts it, "from limb to limb"—a week-from Friday night. You might sup-pose that this would put a certain amount of constraint upon their pre-liminary relations and lead to the ex-change of a scowl or two and the baring of a scattered fang when they meet in mufti, but it doesn't. I mean, it didn't. Mr. Louis did not seem to know that Mr. Pastor was in the joint at all, and Mr. Pastor sprayed. joint at all, and Mr. Pastor sprayed Mr. Louis with nothing more deadly BLOODLUST CONTROLLED.

Your correspondent once asked Mr. Maxie Rosenbloom to explain how it is that fighters curb their barbarous impulses so neatly outside of the ring. Your correspondent had discovered Mr. Rosenbloom practically beaming upon a rival light heavyweight the night before his scheduled battle with the same individual. It was pretty to watch, but confusing, all the more a because the two controlled killers so because the two controlled killers were rounding out their training cam-paigns in the same night club. Answer me that?
Your correspondent was forced to yield to Mr. Rosenbloom's flawless logic and perfect emotional control. In fact, after seeing Mr. Rosenbloom slap the other fellow 790 times the next night without raising so much as a freekle on the enemy's pan, your cor-respondent came to the conclusion that Mr. Rosenbloom is one of those rare assassins who can etatrol their bloodlust both in the ring and out of it.

Mr. Louis and Mr. Paster are a bit Mr. Louis and Mr. Faster are a bit different. Though they behave like professional bedtime-story tellers when out on a party together, they may be relied on to exhibit a reason-able amount of mutual loathing when the chips are up. At the Humphreys party, both choppers were talking a good fight. Mr. Louis was the terser or the two,

"I'm in fine shape," he said. "I'll belt him as soon as I kin."

Mr. Pastor was more expansive.

"I've watched Louis fight, and I've seen most of the pictures that have been taken of his fights, and this is what I figure will happen," said Bob, who is a clean-out young student of ionrnalism between slaughters. "I'll land the first punch, and that should decide it. I don't mean Louis will go down for keeps the first time I hit him. He seems to be a pretty game fellow. But one good punch will consider him and put him on the defensive.

"Nobody's ever hit him a good belt before except Schmeling, and look what happened then. It's all a question of keeping a clear head and not being afraid. I'm not afraid of Louis. That's on the level. He's just anoth-er man I'm fighting, and I'll try to figure him out and whip him the way I would anybody else. I'm sure I'll win."

"From the Cheapest That's Good to the Best That's Made'

EN ROUTE WASHINGTON, D. C., FOR INAUGURA-TION PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, JAN. 18.—It is written that on the day John Adams lay dying—on July 4, 1826—his fam-

And that the old man, one of the heroes of our Revolution,

"Jefferson still lives." Claud Bowers, writing of that, says:

"Adams spoke for the centuries." Because that same afternoon Thomas Jefferson slipped into the long, long shadows of the valley of death. And on the day it celebrated its independence, America had lost two of its greatest presidents.

The mind stirs, riding to Washington. The mind stirs, thinking of what it was. In Jefferson's time there was a miasma of swamp and fog. There were mud roads and cheap boarding houses. And half the political leaders were not loyal to their own nation so greatly did they hate the man.

In Polk's time, the time of the quiet Tennessean who surprisingly won the office and went from his home near Nashville to Washington-traveling by boat and stage coach-the city still was a city of boarding houses and informality.

The mind thinks on ahead of the rumbling train. There was the day when the senators rode out in their carriages, carrying baskets of lunch and gin, whiskies and wines and cigars to see the Union army thrust back the upstarts from the south who preached the religion of secession. That night the carriages and the frightened, panicstricken senators were a part of the mad rout that flowed back to Washington, leaving a confusion of lunch baskets and cigars and wines. And, too, many men dead on the field. Washington could see the smoke from the camp fires. But there was no one to say, "Go on."

Had there been, the destiny of the nation may have changed.

Thoughts tumble over in the mind as the wheels click on oward Washington.

But until Franklin D. Roosevelt came along, no man since Jefferson has so stirred the emotions of the people of the United States.

JEFFERSON—THE SYMBOL.

Jefferson has become a sort of a creed, or symbol. He used to ride horseback about the muddy streets of the capital city. And the day he left office, after eight years in spring training period. Washington, he spurred his horse down Pennsylvania avenue to escape the crowds and rode the long way to Charlottesville and Monticello, the old homestead. He has become a legend. No one was hated as much. No one loved as much. They used to come and stand in his hallways-just stand there—to see him. They came, utter strangers, and stayed for days, eating at his table, sitting on his lawn. They are him, almost literally, out of house and home. He fed them and talked with them. And at last he asked permission to sell his lands and possessions by lottery. But his friends, some for individual scoring honors with the standard property of the Associated Press.

Arnold Bryan, sharpshooting forward and talked with them. And at last he asked permission to sell his lands and possessions by lottery. But his friends, 59 points. shocked and pained, stepped forward and retained them for him.

"Thomas Jefferson Still Lives"—the old words of John Adams do come down through the years. And it may be that Claud Bowers was right and that John Adams did speak for the centuries.

The men who ride forth from Georgia tonight are called I think Joe and Robert will crowd the maximum of mayhem into a short space of time. Both boys are in season, which means that neither has anything to fear from the state hunting authorities. Joe will probably commit more mayhem than Robert, because he is a bigger boy and better paid, but Pastor won't stop trying until those dogs reach Nome with the anesthetic.

The men who fide forth from Georgia tollight are called the may have differed. But it is true the man in the White House who Wednesday takes office has done things with as firm a hand and as direct a method as did the tall Virginian who remained there for eight years while the tides of progress, destiny, love and hate swirled about him.

They railed at him for spending the nation's money.

They said $15,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase was a disgraceful misuse of public funds; that no one wanted a disgraceful misuse of public funds; that no one wanted the barren, worthless lands; that the nation would be bankrupt and despoiled because of the reckless, highhanded Jefferson. Going to Washington for sports events-and going for Going to Washington for the great spectacle spins the imagination and jogs the memory.

The great Napoleon was riding toward Waterloo, although he did not know it, when Jefferson's ambassadors came over to plead about a peaceful settlement of the Louisiana question.

That was in 1803. And Waterloo was 12 years away. But the great man, treating the ambassadors from the brash new country with slight courtesy, asked about Washington.

He had heard about its queer muddy streets, its bogs and Continued in Second Sports Page.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(P)—
There's joy in Tennisville these days. It's a suppressed joy. The bigwigs of the United States Lawn Tennis Association aren't cheering out loud, but they're pleased, rather than concerned, over the exploits of the court's little rebel, Bryan "Bitsy" Grant Jr., of Atlanta.

From the outsiders' point of view the officials ought to be walking around with their chins on their chests because Grant, in a week's time, has twice knocked off Don Budge, the nation's No. 1 star, and has beaten Frankie Parker, rated No. 2, once.

But actually they're holding their heads high. Grant's winning performances, especially at this time of year when tennis is played on hard courts, should be no surprise. Budge is far from top form. He's playing the winter circuit to condition himself slowly for the challenge again of Australia in the North American zone Davis cup competition early in June.

FIGHTING SPIRIT. The moguls are Loping that the youngsters, upon whom they're counting as future cup timber, will catch some of the little Atlantan's fighting spirit. On and off the court, Bitsy's a ball of fire. He's the type of competitor who always goes "all out" and, when he's relaxing in the locker room, his crooming voice rings out high room, his crooning voice rings out high above the others.

Bitsy still may get his chance in cup play on grass. He came within an ace of earning one of the singles assignments against Australia last year, but the cup powers felt that it should go to Wilmer Allison, the reigning national champion at that time. Allison lost both matches and there are some who still believe Grant could have taken a fall out of either Jack Crawford or Adrian Quist.

When the call is issued for a group.

When the call is issued for a group of six or seven players to report for cup training. Bitsy will be among those summoned. And, unless Parker, Joe Hunt, and Bobby Riggs make a tremendous impression by their play this spring, it's a better bet than it was a year ago that Grant will play against the Aussies. When the call is issued for a group

Virtually counted out of future national and cup play, Sidney Wood Jr., former Wimbledon titleholder, is said to be approaching his old form after an emergency appendectomy last year. He'll probably be invited to the train-

HE'LL BE THERE.

Whether any of these developments contrive to keep Grant from playing his first cup match on grass, it's a thousand to one that Bitsy will be on the scene, pulling hard as usual, for Uncle Sam's boys to win. Furthermore, the U. S. L. T. A. will want him there, And here's the reason:

Forty-eight hours before the United him there. And here's the reason:

Forty-eight hours before the United States-Australian series last year. Team Captain Walter L. Pate went into a huddle with four association officers to decide between Allison and Grant. The veteran Texan got the call and it was Pate's task to break the news to Bitsy.

"Bitsy, I've got to do one of the toughest things in my life," said Pate.
"The committee has decided that..."

"Never mind, Cap," Grant broke in, "don't feel badly about it. I know what you're going to say, and listen, in, "don't feel badly about it. I show what you're going to say, and listen, what you're going to say, and listen, Wilmer rates it. Don't worry cap, Wilmer rates it. Don't worry cap, I'll stick around and give everything I've got in practice or anything you want me to do." 'I was choked up to my adenoids," Pate said later. "I couldn't say any more to him.

"Is there any reason why we shouldn't be happy to see the little fellow is still in there fighting?"

PING-PONG MEET.

DORA, Ala., Jan. 18.—(P)—Ivy Paul Andrews, right-handed major league pitcher, heard he had been traded by the St. Lonis Browns to the Cleveland Indians today, and predicted, the next minute, the latter club would "finish one, two," in the American league this year.

Andrews said he was confident he would have a good year with Cleveland.

"With Lynn Larry, Julius Solters and myself, the Indians will be in the race all the way," he said.

Who is telling the truth?

Here are reprints of ads which were inserted in two Atlanta papers Sunday by the Georgia Pure Milk League.

The doctors quoted were called on long distance telephone by the President of the Pasteur League of Atlanta and here are the telegrams received from the doctors quoted in these ads:

The REAL Truth About Grade A

"Since Baltimore had passed an ordinance that all milk sold in the city must be pasteurized, the cases of rickets among children had increased 100 per cent. The situation in Baltimore had apparently become serious, and a campaign was started to encourage the use of Cod Liver Oil, orange juice, green vegetables, etc., so that the children might have all the vitamins which are necessary to insure normal growth.

about the dangers of Pasteurizing Milk!

"In the pasteurizing of milk, the milksouring germs are killed, but the sporeformers remain unaffected, because a much higher temperature is required to destroy them; a temperature of 220 degrees F. to 240 degrees F. In other words, pasteurizing destroys the harmless acid-forming germs and leaves the dangerous germs with nothing to hinder their development and mischievous activity.

"If pasteurized milk is not kept cold but is allowed to stand for some hours at a higher temperature, it will not sour if it has been well pasteurized, but, instead, the dangerous Welch's bacillus and other dangerous germs will develop in it and it will become unfit for use, even dangerous to life. Diarrhea in children is often due to this cause.

Miss Patsy Spalding Mr. and Mrs. Murray Shoun Join Atlanta Colony at Sea Island, Ga.

By Sally Forth.

SHELTERED by palms and tall pines, the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Shoun have just purchased at Sea Island Beach looks out on the broadest section of the wide beach. White clapboards were used in building the two-story house, and a screened front porch provides a delightful outdoor living room. The house is one of the little colony of homes fronting on a board walk, with a special board walk from the Shoun house leading onto the beach.

Just now, the house is being freshly, done over, from the white exterior to all of the inside walls and furnishings. On the screened porch, white lacquered furniture with a smart trim of black, will be accented by the red chair cushions and table covers.

Soft aqua-green walls are being used in the dining room and living room, while pale cream walls are being used in the other rooms of the house. In the living room, bright-hued chintzes add to the feelinvited a crowd of debs and young men about town over to his apartment for cocktails. It

WHEN the former King Ed-VV ward VIII made his radio speech abdicating the throne of England on December 11, Mary Blackwell was hard at work, being one of the many Atlanta belles who have recently launched upon a business career. Accordingly, she was prevented from hearing the epoch-making speech, which almost broke her heart. For the ex-King has no greater admirer anywhere than Mary.

"Why, I stood hours before trying to get King James palace trying to get a glimpse of him when I was in London," she said. "And it was a thrill just to see where he lived." You remember, of course, the grand trip Mary had to England summer before last when she visited Mrs. Regniald Thomas and was the toast of the younger set

Well, some of the regret of not hearing that speech was re-moved yesterday when bright and early the postman rang Mary's doorbell. He brought an intriguing-looking package from New York. It had been sent by her brother, Earl Blackwell, of Hollywood, Cal., who went east shortly after spending Christmas here with his family.

Imagine her thrill on opening the package to find a record of King Edward's farewell speech!

My Day ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Sunday.-Friday afternoon I had tea for the council for the Federation of Women's Clubs, which meets here every winter. Last year my husband was able to come in and say a few words to them, but this year, with congress just convening and an inaugural address In the making, it was quite impossible for him to be present. The ladies were much disappointed, and we can only hope that next year he will

Saturday morning was one of those hideous mornings which I suppose must go with any inauguration. All the photographers wanted photographs of what I was going to wear on Wednesday. They were set up in groups on the lower floor of the White House and I progressed from one to the other ways and a progressed from one to the other ways and a progressed from one to the other ways and a progressed from one to the other ways and a progressed from one to the other ways and a progressed from one to the other ways and the other ways are the other ways ar gressed from one to the other. My only consolation was that there would never be another inauguration and this was really the last time here, and I hope forever, the last posed picture I will have to have taken.

The day was a most glorious one, so I stole half an hour and went for a walk before lunch. A large and formal luncheon with Madame Sze on my right and Donna Matilda De Suvich on my left. This was Mrs. Cordell Hull's first appearance here since she came back from her South American trip, I was delighted to see her and so was everybody else.

Mrs. Hull brought me a truly international gift. It was made in Holland, bought in Bermuda, sent to her in the Argentine and brought by her back to me. It is one of those delightfully soft and warm shawls which you never wish to be without, once you possess them.

Some people came in for tea. Lady Rhonda and Miss Stanhope, who are here from England, came for dinner with a few other friends. A relative of mine had written me that Lady Rhonda was anxious to see me, but that she felt it imperative to see the President, and if that interview was not arranged, she would feel her entire visit to the United States had been spoiled. The only way I could arrange it was to put her next to him and in the could be the could be a spoiled. her next to him at dinner, which was successfully done.

A very exciting movie last night, but it was not such a good picture for the gentlemen in the audience, most of whom happened to be par-ticularly interested in conservation, and groaned as each large and beautiful tree came to the ground. As a method of entertaining my husband, I am afraid it was not very successful, though the picture was really very good, with beautiful country and an interesting story.

we all look forward to a quiet afternoon.

Mrs. Baker Weds Mr. McManus 'At Ceremony in Evanston, Ill.

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 18.—The marriage of Mrs. Ruby McDaniel Baker to William Wells McManus, of Atlanta, Ga., was quietly solemnized here this afternoon, the ceremony taking place at 4 o'clock at the Second Presbyterian church. The Rev. Dr. Frank M. Sisley, pastor of the church, read the marriage service which, was witnessed only by members of the immediate families of the bride and groom.

The couple was unattended. The bride chose for the ceremony a handsome costume suit of coronation blue wool, collared in black Persian lamb. A matching blue hat and black saede bag, gloves and shoes completed the ensemble. The bride's flowers were a shoulder cluster of purple orchids.

Mr. McManus and his bride left for a month's trip to the west coast. They will visit Denver, Salt Lake City, Reno, San Francisco and Los Angeles, Returning by the southern route, they will visit Grand Canyon and other points of interest.

Upon their arrival in Atlanta, the couple will take possession of their apartment at 60 Inman circle.

Mrs. McManus is the younger daughter of Henry P. McDaniel and Georgia capital.

Try new dishes, seasoned in different ways.

Remember that there are two reasons for the use of seasonings. One is to enhance the natural flavor of the food and the other is to give flavor to food which possesses little. When cooking meat, one has only to enhance the flavor, except when preparing meat from which the flavor has been extracted for soup. That is usually spiced or combined with highly flavored vegetables, such as onions. From time immemorial spices have

From time immemorial spices have been used with meats. Sometimes these were used for preserving meat. But spices were expensive, and various herbs and seeds which could be grown in home gardens were used. (I wonder who first discovered how good mustard might be on meat, and who first used the sharp flavor of horseradish to lend savor to food!)

Don't Aver-Season. It is better to season food too little than too much. One can always add or increase a seasoning to taste, but it is difficult to do anything to correct over-seasoning.

Another point to remember is in sea-Another point to remember is in sea-soning (as in using perfume) one should be subtle. A dish should not "taste of" one decided flavor. For instance, a very small amount of onion, so slight as to be unrecognized even by those who don't like onions, may blend with and enhance the flavor of meat dish.
Of course there is a wide variation

Contract Bridge World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

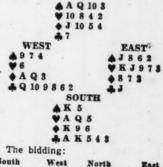

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play." which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

THE TWO-BID RULE. When the hand conforms to the general specifications of a forcing two-bid—count your honor tricks. Count your losing tricks—cards which you expect some other player to win. Bid two in your longest biddable suit if your hand contains more honor tricks than losers.

K 6, you can see at once that you must lose one spade trick, no heart tricks, perhaps a trick in diamonds (therefore one-half a trick), and at least one, probably two, club tricks if partner has no entry. Total, three and one-half or four losers; honor tricks, five-plus; bid two spades.

Mrs. Edward G. Hitt Is Elected President of Sheltering Arms

Mrs. Edward G. Hitt was elected president of the Sheltering Arms Association at its recent meeting at which Mrs. William Akers, retiring president, presided. Mrs. Hitts vital interest and natural leadership qualify her to fill the place of president of this worthy organization. Mrs. Hitt accepted her office with appreciation and assurance of her best efforts for the organization's welfare.

Those chosen by the association have proven their interest and capability in this work by serving in various capacities for several years. The following are the new officers for 1937: Honorary president, Mrs. Presidents Mestadames Edwin McCarty, Glenville Giddings and H. W. Beers; treasurer, Mrs. Marian Candler; dues treasurer, Mrs. Marian Candler; dues treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Osborne; recording secretary, Mrs. Russell Bellman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Herbert co-chairman of the Cornelia Moore nursery. He counts above five honor tricks, including plus values, and he has a strong trump suit. He therefore counts his losers: The king of spades, the king of hearts, the ace of diamonds, and the two little clubs, five in all. He has only five honor tricks. Not having more honor tricks than losers, he bids only one spade.

Most hands which approach the two-bid range are so strong that the few losers are readily apparent. With a hand such as spades K Q J 10 65, heart A, diamonds A K Q 3 and clubs K 6, you can see at once that you K 6, you can see at once that you K 6, you can see at once that you knew the strong musculature is all that stands between you and a dowdy waist. It helps to stand tall and straight, with the figure in correct when you slump, the muscles become slack, and the figure looks bunchy about the waist.

To stay youthfully slim, however, may require the use of regular specific exercise. Here is an exercise which gets all the muscles along the sides and front:

Position—Stand on the floor on the knees, hands clasped high overhead.

knees, hands clasped high overhead.

Movement—Still stretching up with the clasped hands, bend the trunk at the waist to the extreme left, return to the upright position, and then bend to the right. And don't think that doesn't squeeze the fat pads and strengthen weak muscles! Begin with a couple of bends to either side, and gradually increase the number of times you do this exercise. It will make you flexible.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(49)—Buying was selective in the bond market today and all departments except United States Governments revealed mixed price tendencies.

While a number of lower-priced rail liens sold off fractionally, others were in fair demand and carried the Associated Press average of 20 issues up. 1 of a point of 99.0, a new 1936-37 high.

Higher were Reading convertible 6s, at 24 1-2, up 1-2; Santa Fe convertible 4 1-2s, 111, up 1-2; Illinois Central 4 3-4s, 79 1-4, up 5-8, and Norfolk Southern 1st 5s, 21-4 higher at 31 3-4.

On the off side by god fractions were Great Northern 4s, 1-23; Rock Island general 4s, 42 1-4; Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, 86 1-2, and Chesapeake Corporation 5s, 153 1-8.

Some industrials were in favor, especially Central Foundry 6s, which followed an advance of the common stock and finished 18 points up at text. followed an advance of the common stock and finished 18 points up at 233. Wickwire Spencer Steel con-vertible 6s gained 2 1-8 at 37 1-2, vertible 6s gained 2 1-8 at 37 1-2, and advances up to a point or more were recorded for American & Foreign Power 5s, at 86 7-8, Pure Oil 41-2s at 125 1-2, and Colorado Fuel & Iron 5s, 91 3-8, Losers included Pan-American Petroleum 6s, down 3 1-2 at 51 1-2. troleum 6s, down 3 1-2 at 51 1-2, Utilities Power & Light, which sag-ged 2 at 62 1-4 and Youngstown Sheet & Tube 3 1-2s, 127 7-8, down

Sheet & Tube 3 1-2s, 127 7-8, down 12 3-8.
Virtually the only gains in the government list were scored by Treastury 3 3-4s of 1946, which closed up 6-32 at 113 1-4, and the 3 3-8s of 1940, 1'32 higher at 107.11. Losses of from 2-32 to 6-32 extended throughout the department.
Foreign loans were generally lower with Cuba 5 1-2s, Japan 6 1-2s and Peru 6s off from fractions to more than a point.

than a point.

An Argentine government announcement of plans for refunding issues due in 1961 and 1962 came too late to affect the market. Sales of $12,742,000, par value, compared with $15,922,000 last Fri-

COTTON RECOVERS LATE ON N. Y. EXCHANGE
NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(P)—Early declines in cotton today were recovered in late trading on spot house buying and covering.

May sold up from 12.29 to 12.35 and closed at 12.34 with final prices generally 1 point net lower to 2 higher. The market opened 3 to 7 points lower in sympathy wit ensier cables and under foreign selling and liquidation. The losses were extended a point or so further in early dealings, but the trade absorbed offerings in March and May positions. Final prices were about the best of the day. Offerings became more plentiful at the closing highs as March sold up to within 2 points of the 12 1-2-cent basis.

Exports today 14,783, making a total of 3,325,915 for the season thus far. Port receipts 16,677. United States port stocks 2,644,656.

"From my viewpoint, that is. Here—read this letter." He pulled a long, folded sheet from his pocket and shoved it across to her. "That'll tell you."

"Well, what then?"
"He took down my address, and an evening or two later he looked me up and drove me back to his flat for dinner. You know, he's got a rather posh outlit over by the Albert Hall. Owns the whole house. Her flat was above his."

Uncomprehendingly she stared at the heading. This was no love letter. Nicholas G. Blundell? Why, he was a solicitor, her godfather, as it happened, and Aunt Rose Somervell's close friend! She glanced at the communication and uttered a gasp.

"But, Adrian!" she whispered. "Is this true?"

"Naturally, we got talking of her. Blundell told me confidentially that she was feeling slightly hurt over my being in London for months and never

"O. yes. Blundell himself drew it up. It is pretty astounding, isn't it?"
"Astounding! Why. Adrian, I.but wait, let me read it through."
With knit brows she pored over the letter—and as she read her bewilderment grew. In dry, legal language, as though stating the most ordinary fact, it announced that Mrs. Rose Somervell, by her last will and testament, had bequeathed the bulk of her

LUMBERJACKS AND THEIR WORK.

II—FELLING THE TREES.
In some old stories of Europe, we read about "a poor wood-cutter" who supported his family as well as he could by cutting down trees, and selling the wood.

The present-day wood-cutter is likely to be poor enough, but he does not very often live "alone with his family in the forest." For many years we have had large-scale work in cutting the trees. A small lumber camp may contain a score of lumber-jacks, and a large one may be the home of 125 to 150 men.

When a tree is to be felled, the usual thing is to start with blows of the ax. A "notch" or very deep cut may be made with the ax, but then the saw is a cross-cut blade six or eight feet long, with a handle at each end, pulled back and forth by two men.

That is the most common way of cutting a tree, but it is not the only one. In some places, as in Eastern Canada, the one-man saw is widely used for felling pulp-wood trees. In some spruce forests, where the trees are not of great size, the ax is the only tool employed for cutting down the trees.

Saws driven by power machines

Felling a Tree.

When they go forth to fell the trees, lumberjacks take with them axes and saws. These tools have been in use for thousands of years. Men of the Stone Age had stone hand axes with which they could cut down young trees and before the Stone Age was with which they could cut down young trees, and before the Stone Age was over the ax-head with a handle was invented. Stone Age men also used a crude kind of saw, made from flint. Perhaps the bill of a dead sawfish, washed ashore with the tide, gave people the idea of making such a tool.

The lumberjack's ax is sharp-bladed and well-balanced. Sometimes it is double-adged.

But there is—that uncanny light!

In a bare little laboratory on the top floor of a modest two-story house in the quaint old Bavarian town of Murzburk a tall, ungainly scientist tinkers with a new kind of vacuum tube called a Crookes tube. Through the newly developed device the bearded savant is passing a high-pressure electric current. He covers the tube with a black shield and darkens his electric current. He covers the tube with a black shield and darkens his num is much more transparent than
